6. NEW EDUCATION POLICY AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT:

The new National Education Policy is a welcome improvement at a time when children's and youth's health, happiness, and immunity are becoming increasingly important due to the pandemic. The new NEP has a number of crucial components that are essential for a child's overall growth. The NEP accepts sports as being as vital to other subjects like English or Science by doing away with the strict division between academic and extracurricular activities, hence improving the Fun and Engagement that students so badly desire in a school and colleges. Children and youth can grow physically, cognitively, and socially via play. Additionally, we have discovered that playing has a favorable impact on attendance rates, classroom behavior, and academic results too. Additionally, assessment-specific reforms like the creation of the National Assessment Center and monitoring a child's progress based on learning outcomes are fantastic efforts since they concentrate on person's full development by concentrating on their learning progress. In order to ensure that all children experience the enchantment of play and sport, as well as to create a country of healthier and fitter children through the educational system, we anticipate that sports and games will be taught and evaluated with the same rigor and structure as key academic subjects. Children's and youth's holistic development is greatly aided by the focus on vocational education, and it is our desire that students will be able to select physical activity and sports as a co-curricular topic. This will shed light on the whole Indian educational system because it is a complete foundation for both basic and higher education. We are offering this subject for first and second year students. Fitness tests and project for first year and Nutrition project and mcq test for second year.
